

The Russia House is designed to accommodate up to 6 students (two double rooms and two single rooms) plus a resident director. At 102 Cresap, the House is located very near Alderman Library, Newcomb Hall, Memorial Gymnasium, and Central Grounds. A mixture of graduate students and undergraduates, some of whom are native speakers of Russian, live in the House. The House is furnished with a TV and VCR and a small library of useful books (dictionaries, etc.). The House has become a center for engaging cultural activities, including a Russian tea and conversation hour. In sum, the Russian House provides a congenial atmosphere for the pursuit of Russian area studies.
